Foreword

This catalogue was compiled by the staff of the Department of Consumer Affairs from records dating from recent years back to the 1920's. Many hours have been spent to ensure accurate spelling and categorizing of films; any errors or omissions should be brought to the attention of the department.

Brief History of Film Classification

Background

The Theatres and Amusements Act in Nova Scotia was one, if not the first, of its kind in Canada. It was passed in 1915 when silent movies were already popular. Jurisdiction over these films was given to what was known as a Censor who had at his call a "citizen's advisory board" when he required additional support. Principal concern in these early years, which were during World War I, was the political influence of films. In fact, what limited records there are indicate that the Censor's role, with respect to permitting or not permitting films disrespectful of other countries, was an active one, especially on one or two specific occasions. "Talking" pictures changed the censorship role considerably in the late 1920's, and with the joining of visuals with the spoken word, the Censor found himself in a new dimension.

The 30's & 40's

With increasing technological change, and peacetime attitudes the Censor and his Boards, began "editing" films and removing segments as opposed to forbidding the film altogether. This approach progressed, particularly through the years after World War II.

The 50's & 60's

Drifing away from the "Rally around the Flag" and patriotic films of the 1940's, the film industry turned to entertainment, enhanced by the use of color techniques and by the surge of television into the consumer market.

The 70's & 80's

"Entertainment" films soon reflected more a "open" society and the influence of pornography and violence in the industry became more pronounced.

It was in the 1970's that Nova Scotia amended its approach to films through the adoption of a "classification" system rather than "censorship"; only those films which offered no story line and were produced only for the sake of "pornography" or "excessive violence", for example, were completely rejected.

Through the system of classification and use of captions, the public are now "advised" of the nature of the film (or cassette) as a product for sale, rent or viewing, as an entertainment product.

Categories of Classification

The regulations under the Theatres and Amusements Act set out the parameters that the Amusements Regulation Board must use in determining the classification of a film. There are three major classifications: GENERAL, ADULT and RESTRICTED. In addition, there may be some films where the board attaches a caption which further describes the contents of a film.

CLASSIFICATION	CAPTIONS THAT MAY BE USED
General The film is one that the Board considers the viewing of which should not be restricted to persons of any age.	Parental guidance.
Adult The film is one the Board considers the viewing of which should be restricted to persons 14 years of age or older or to persons, younger than 14 years of age who are accompanied by an adult because the film contains scenes of limited violence such as hand fighting, the use of weapons without excessive blood-letting and restrained portrayal of accident or disaster, scenes involving casual or brief nudity, romantic involvement that is not sexually explicit and where participants are at least partially clothed, or some use of coarse or vulgar language.	Not suitable for children. Nude scenes. Violent scenes. Offensive language.
Restricted The film is one the Board considers the viewing of which should be restricted to persons 18 years of age or older because the film contains scenes of torture, physical abuse or extreme violence, graphic depiction of accident or horror, nudity, sexual actvity or excessive use of offensive language or promotes antisocial behavior.	Extreme violence. Explicit sex. Objectionable material. Perversions. Not to be shown at Drive Ins.

Certain films available for sale or rent as videos are "exempt from classification". These films will be marked at rental or sales outlets with white exemption stickers and include such videos as children's cartoons, ethnic and cultural films, sporting events and "how to" films.

The contents of some films do not meet the criteria for film classification as specified in the regulations. These films are Rejected and have not been catalogued.
